DANIELS PRAYS AT DEATH

Tornado Hits; 46 Left Dead Among Ruins

By CARL BELL

WARREN, Ark.—(AP)—At 5:45 p. m. (CST) yesterday, this was a thriving lumber mill community in the lush pinelands of southern Arkansas.

Today, it is a place of sorrow, pain and destruction, littered with splinters.

A vicious, 15-minute tornado between 5:45 and 6 p. m. yesterday was responsible for the change.

Mayor Jim Hurley expressed belief the fatality toll would exceed 50. Between 250 and 300 were injured.

He said the death toll stood at 46 and that he expected more bodies would be found in debris that littered a 20-square block residential and industrial area. At least 27 dead had been tentatively identified. Identification of several others was made difficult because of the condition of the bodies.

The business district escaped damage. Residential areas and lumber mills in the southern and eastern sections were devastated.

The storm climaxed a series of twisters that hop-skipped and dipped through northwest Louisiana and Arkansas late yesterday and last night. None of the others was as violent as the big, black cloud with a red funnel that bore down on Warren, with a population of 7,500, ninety miles south of Little Rock.

Two persons perished near Haynesville, La., northeast of Shreveport, and a score or more was injured. Two dead and nearly a score injured was the toll of two storms near El Dorado, Ark., southwest of here and north of Haynesville.

STRIKES AGAIN

The storm hit once more after leaving here, striking Dark Corner, northeast of Warren about an hour later. Two persons were hurt.

Mayor Hurley said a conservative estimate of property damage would be $1,000,000, but other estimates were larger.

"Milltown," an area comprising the big Bradley Lumber company, mill, one of the largest flooring plants in the South, and residences of many of the employes in the southern section, was battered severely.

Lumber was splintered and showered over the community. Dwellings were flattened. Fire cast an eerie glow over the scene as rescue workers searched debris for casualties. Their only lights were electric torches, lanterns or oil flares. The flickering lights of the shadowy figures added a touch of weirdness to the picture.

The search continued through the night while ambulances made round trips between here, Monticello, 18 miles to the east, and Pine Bluff, 40 miles to the north, carrying injured to hospitals and relieving congestion of two local clinics. The American Legion hut and the YMCA were set up as emergency hospitals.

All the dead were at one funeral home. A garage was being used for a temporary morgue.

The tornado which smashed through Warren is the second to hit this part of Arkansas within the past 19 months. Thirty-eight persons perished on June 1, 1947 when tragedy struck on the outskirts of Pine Bluff, 40 miles north of Warren. Warren residents rushed aid to stricken families following that tornado. Today Pine Bluffs is repaying its debt.

Gas Use Charged

TEL AVIV—(UP)—Egyptian sources have charged Israeli troops with using gas in the Negev fighting, it was reported today, and the Egyptian high command has threatened gas attacks against Jewish settlements in retaliation.

An Israeli military spokesman said the Egyptian complaint had been made to Brig. Gen. William Riley, chief United Nations observer in Palestine, by the Egyptian commander in the Negev.

This report said the Egyptian commander said the Jews had used tear gas and choking gas against an Egyptian brigade, estimated at 2,000 men, trapped in Faluja for several weeks.

The Jewish spokesman said the Egyptian commander had threatened to use gas against Jewish settlements in the Negev in retaliation.

The Jewish spokesman denied the Egyptian charges. He said they probably were prompted by Egyptian plans to use gas to extricate their troops from a desperate military situation. Or, he said, it was an attempt to carry on a smear campaign against the Jews.

DENY CHARGE

The Jewish spokesman said if the Egyptians compelled the Jews to take "appropriate action" against gas attacks, the Egyptian high command would "long regret it."

He added the Jews at Faluja had never used anything even remotely resembling any form of gas.

A two-hour battle in which two Jews and "several" Iraqis were killed broke out last night on the central front northwest of Natanya, the Jewish spokesman said.

Reports from Cairo, meanwhile, said that the Egyptian government has cabled the United Nations Security council that it will abide by the council's Dec. 29 order calling for a cease-fire in Palestine.

West, Reds Trade Blows

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The western powers, in a sharp counterblow to communist propaganda charges, have demanded an exact count of German war prisoners still held in the Soviet union.

Under a four-power agreement, all prisoners of war were to have been sent home by the end of 1948. Russia has been claiming that many former German soldiers are being held as phony "volunteer" workers in the western zones of Germany.

The United States, France and Britain gave their answer to that charge yesterday.

The state department announced that a note had been delivered to Moscow asking (a) how many prisoners of war still are in Russia; (b) what the Soviet union plans to do about returning them to Germany; and (c) how many have died in captivity.

Marriages By Five-Year-Old Ruled Legal

LOS ANGELES — (U.P.) — A dispute over the ethics of a marriage performed by a four-year-old boy minister raged through religious circles today, although legal authorities agreed the rite was within the law.

Deputy County Counsel Edward H. Gaylor said the ceremony Sunday joining Alma Brown, 21, and Navy Seaman Raymond Miller, 23, was valid despite being performed by a minor, the Rev. Marjo Gortner, who is four years old.

The curly-haired, freckled youngster, an ordained evangelist, carried off his part of the rites in Long Beach, Cal., as though it was an everyday occurrence. But his father, the Rev. Vernon Gortner, said it was his first wedding.

Fraud Trial Starts

COLUMBUS — (UP) — Carl Lucas, one of four persons indicted in alleged frauds in Franklin county veterans housing projects, went on trial in county criminal court here today. Lucas is accused of giving the county fake bills for work done on the housing projects built at a cost of $337,637.

GOP Aid Seen For Truman

Congress Backs Initial Action

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Signs of some unexpected Republican support for President Truman appeared on Capitol Hill today as the new 81st Congress ironed out organization details.

Mr. Truman will face the lawmakers tomorrow when he delivers his annual state of the union message to a joint Senate-House session.

Developments in yesterday's opening session indicated clearly that Mr. Truman will have far less difficulty getting what he wants from Congress than he has had in the past.

He is expected to want just about everything contained in the platform adopted last summer by the Democratic national convention.

Mr. Truman campaigned fpr repeal of the Taft-Hartley labor law and for passage of laws to provide housing, health and education aids, a higher minimum wage, firmer farm price supports and protection of minority groups against discrimination

With both Senate and House in recess until tomorrow, members of the Democratic majority and the Republican minority were trying to interpret an opening-day House vote which, on its face, indicated that President Truman may have a lot of Republican support in the new Congress.

CURB RULES POWER

That vote was on an administration-backed proposal to curb the power of the House Rules committee, on which in the past a coalition of Republicans and southern Democrats has blocked major legislation wanted by the President. The same coalition was a distinct possibility again this year, especially with regard to legislation to repeal the Taft-Hartley labor law.

So Truman Democrats backed a chance to make it easier to get around a rules committee roadblock. They proposed that anytime a legislative committee approves a bill and the rules committee doesn't clear it for a House vote within 21 days, the chairman of the legislative committee can force action.

He can do it simply by making, and getting carried, on the second or fourth Monday of any month, a motion to bring the blocked bill before the House.

In the House, the Democratic Committee on Committees, which passes out the assignments, was expected to maneuver John E. Rankin (D-Miss) off the un-American Activities group.

Ticket Sale Shows Gain

The house was two-thirds sold out at noon today for Mansfield's 37th annual Chamber of Commerce banquet.

With three days left to purchase tickets, Chamber officials urged the public to "buy early" today as all ticket sales must be completed by Friday. The banquet will be held Jan. 14 at the Coliseum.

John M. Schroeder, chairman of publicity for the banquet, said 1,078 tickets have been sold so far. He added that 325 tickets were sold in the first two days of public sale and that 178 tickets were sold in the 24-hour period between noon Monday and noon today.

Tickets for the affair, the city's largest banquet, are on sale at the Tawse drug store, Ritter's, Chamber of Commerce, Farmers bank and the Book Shop.

ROBERT MURL DANIELS . . . Dies in electric chair

Won't Seek Re-election

Arlin Heads School Board 16th Year

Harold W. Arlin today began his 16th year as president of the Mansfield board of education, and he said it probably would be his last as a member of the board.

Arlin was re-elected last night at the board's annual reorganization meeting. He has headed the school law-making body ever since he was elected to it.

Harold A. Bruce was re-elected vice president of the board.

"I shall not seek renomination to the board this year, as far as I can see now," Arlin said at the conclusion of the election meeting. He is beginning the last year of his current four-year term as a board member.

Arlin was nominated by Bruce. No other nominations were made. He was elected unanimously by the members present, as was Bruce.

Earlier the board approved the transfer of funds required to make appropriations balance expenditures. Approximately $40,000 was transferred.

TRANSFER OK'd

John Eisaman, board of education clerk, reported expenditures of $1,193,325 for 1948. The original appropriation for the year was $1,194,276. Transfer of the balance, $951, to the general fund was approved.

The board approved the renewal of the clerk's bond for $10,000.

Regular meeting night was continued as the third Monday of each month.

The board authorized the clerk to pay discountable bills between meetings and authorized him to pay school personnel with the approval of the superintendent of schools.

Travel expenses for teachers and garage rent for the coming year approved.

William McE. Weldon was reappointed to a seven-year term as a director of the Mansfield public library.

Eisaman announced preparations for printing the $2,250,000 worth of school bonds are under way. He reported that 84 queries have been received from bond buyers. Bids on the bonds will be opened at noon, Jan. 12.

Herbert In Final Talk

Will Speak Before General Assembly

COLUMBUS —(AP)— The two-day-old 98th Ohio General Assembly meets today to hear Republican Gov Thomas J. Herbert's "swan song" at 8 p. m.

Herbert turns over his office next Monday to Democrat Frank J. Lausche. It will be the former Cleveland mayor's second term as governor. His first term was in 1945-46.

The present governor, speaking in person to a joint session, will make final recommendations to the now Democratic-dominated legislature.

Recommendations are expected to include putting the state on a fiscal year starting July 1, instead of the present calendar year beginning Jan. 1.

The change would eliminate the scramble at the start of each session to pass an emergency appropriations bill to finance state operations for the first six months, including legislators' pay. A two-year appropriations bill customarily is prepared later and carefully screened at long committee hearings.

French Probe 'Plush Living'

PARIS —(U.P.)—A special government commission investigated charges today that French officials squandered millions of dollars in government funds during 1946 and 1947, on wine, women and plush living.

The special court of accounts charged that officials took their wives or stenographers on trips to the Riviera at government expense, bought furniture for army officers and "permanently borrowed" fixtures for the wartime office of DeGaulle.

Snow, Cold Forecast

Mild and windy with occasional rain tonight is the weatherman's prediction for the Mansfield area.

Light rain began falling over the city shortly before 9 a. m. today, and continued intermittently throughout the morning. The mercury reading at noon was 40 degrees.

The mercury will rise tonight, but tomorrow will see a change to colder with rain changing to snow the forecaster said.

The weather bureau's five-day forecast follows:

Temperatures will average near normal. Little temperature trend until warmer Saturday or Sunday lower lakes area indicates much colder Thursday. Snow likely about Friday. Total precipitation near one inch.

Late News Bulletins

Bill Would Give President Pension

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The first of more than 400 bills introduced in the House at the opening session of the 81st Congress would give President Truman a $25,000 annual pension when he retires. Applicable to all former presidents, it also would affect Herbert Hoover. It was introduced by Rep. O'Toole (D-NY).

Navy Denies Evacuation Planned

SHANGHAI—(INS)—The U. S. Navy Public Information office in Shanghai denied tonight that there is any plan to evacuate the American naval base at Tsingtao on twenty-four hours' notice because of the communists' apparent success in the China civil war. A report that the U. S. Navy was ready to evacuate its north China base at Tsingtao gained currency yesterday in Shanghai but it apparently had no basis in fact.

Niebels' Slayer Clings To Priest on Last Walk; Declared Dead, 8:09

By DON MILLER, N-J Telegraph Editor

Outwardly calm and with a prayer on his lips, Robert Murl Daniels, 24, went to his death in the electric chair at the Ohio State penitentiary a few moments after 8 o'clock last night.

Pale and leaning slightly on the arm of Rev. C. V. Lucier, penitentiary Catholic chaplain, Daniels shuffled slowly into the death chamber at 8:01 p. m. At 8:09 p. m. the brutal killer of three Mansfielders was pronounced dead.

In the brief span of eight minutes, the surviving member of the kill-crazy pair who terrorized Ohio for 14 days last July was strapped into the chair, two terrific shocks of electricity were poured through his body, and a seemingly interminable examination was performed by two physicians.

The 17 witnesses, Warden R. W. Alvis, three physicians, and the executioner had barely moved into place along the wall facing the electric chair when a brief knock summoned Daniels and the priest into the execution chamber.

The self-proclaimed killer of John, Nolana, and Phyllis Niebel walked in. His eyes were closed, his head bent. He was praying aloud with the priest. He was stooped and haggard, and was partially supported on the priest's left arm.

As he mounted the single step to the chair and was helped to sit down, he sank back into it as though his legs would no longer hold him up. Without once stopping the prayers, he sat back woodenly, eyes still closed and head bowed.

The once fastidious Daniels was dressed in a white shirt, dark gray trousers, brown shoes, and bright blue socks. Before it could even be seen whether his trouser leg had been slit, it had been rolled above the knee.

Two guards, working rapidly, started fastening straps about the doomed man. Father Lucier stood a few scant inches in front of the chair, leaning over Daniels and directing the prayers.

A pan filled with what witnesses took to be brine sat to the right rear of the chair. When straps had been fastened just above Daniels' wrists, around his arms at the elbows, around his ankles, and just below the knees, a rag was dipped into this pan, then swabbed on a dark projection at the top of the chair. The same procedure took place for the leg electrode, and the leg clamps were made tight.

Daniels' head did not appear to have been shaved, one of the guards brushed the hair forward, then fastened the electrode to the skull. As the guard reached for the black mask and started to lower it over the doomed man's face, Father Lucier broke into the Lord's Prayer, repeating it in a low tone as he stepped a few feet back from the chair and its tiny platform.

Daniels, his voice muted by the mask, followed the priest's lead, his words barely distinguishable. His voice, although weak, did not break and he droned on in a dull monotone as though stripped of emotion.

A tiny blue bulb burned on the wall behind his head. Two minutes had passed.

As Father Lucier took his final step and stopped, a signal passed from Warden Alvis to the executioner. The executioner, a large man in a dark grey suit, reached toward the wall to the left rear of the chair, and made a motion with his hand.

The tiny blue light went out, a red one right below it flashed on, and Daniels' body lurched upward, tearing at the straps. For what seemed hours his body remained rigid, the tendons and veins of his neck and legs standing out against the reddening flesh.

Father Lucier finished the Lord's Prayer alone.

CURRENT STRIKES

As the powerful current passed through Daniels' body his fists remained clenched and resting on the arms of the chair. A crucifix was clasped in the right one and a rosary in the left. They held the same rigid position as the barely discernible hum of the generator became quiet and the red light was replaced by the blue one.

His body fell back onto the chair which made the once jaunty killer look small and insignificant. About 15 seconds had passed.

After about the same length of time had crept by, Daniels' body again lunged against the confining straps and a crackling sound was heard. Faint wisps of smoke rose from the electrode about his leg, swirling between his knees. The blue light had again given way to the red and the generator's hum could be faintly heard. Except for this, dead silence held sway.

As the lights again changed, the reddened flesh about his chest and throat began to turn a bluish-black color. His head was thrown back against the chair and he was motionless. He remained in that position as someone spoke just one word. 'Doctor.' It fairly crackled in the deadly silence.

Keeping the Death Watch

'He Seemed to Wait For Us to Leave'

By MALCOLM HARTLEY, N-J Sunday Editor

This is the story of the death watch—a weird ceremony of a civilized world in which men gather to watch a fellow human being die in atonement for crime against society.

Those who entered the grim walls of the Ohio penitentiary last night to witness the execution of Robert Murl Daniels were there because they had reason to be. Some were officials who had played a part in the capture and conviction of Daniels; others, like Don Miller and myself of the News-Journal staff, were newspapermen.

By 7 p. m. we death watchers had begun to enter the small ante-room to the left inside the penitentiary's main entrance. Most of us were strangers to each other.

We looked with curiosity at each new arrival, and I suppose the others were wondering, as I wondered:

"Why is that fellow here?"

Again and again the door opened until 19 men had gathered in the office. Then they stopped coming.

For those who would not, or could not, be there, I'll outline our activities step-by-step — not the execution itself, but the events leading up to it.

SHOW CREDENTIALS

Across the room from the door which we entered there were bars which blocked entrance to the interior of the penitentiary. Back of these, under a sign reading "Information," stood a guard. Each new arrival showed his credentials to the guard, who methodically listed the names on small yellow slips of paper.

There were two benches in the room. Nobody used them, except for brief intervals. To the left of the entrance were

Nip Generals Given Life

YOKOHAMA — (INS) —Three Japanese generals, including the former chief of the dreaded "thought police," were sentenced yesterday to life imprisonment for "carrying out a policy of murdering" 45 captured American airmen.

The verdict of a U. S. eighth army court in Yokohama stated that the murders were perpetrated "by beheading, shooting and poisoning."

A fourth general was sentenced to 40 years' imprisonment while eleven other Japanese were given lesser terms.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's occupation headquarters said the actual number of American flyers killed in these wartime cases was more than fifty. However, only 45 of the murders could be proved on the basis of admissable evidence.

Those given life terms were Lt. Gen. Sanji Okida, former commander of the Kempetai "thought control" general headquarters; Lt. Gen. Michio Kunitake erstwhile chief of staff for Japan's 15th area and central district armies, and Maj. Gen. Tsugio Nagatomo, ex-commander of the central district military police.

Raging Elements Kill 100 Persons

LONDON — (UP) — A death toll of around 100 persons and widespread damage were marked up yesterday as a result of gales, torrential rains and snow in western Europe.

England, France and Italy were the hardest hit. The freak weather sent the Thames over its banks, raised a waterspout in the English channel ,lashed the Eiffel tower with 100-mile an hour winds, and dumped cloudbursts in north Italy.

ASKS ARREST PROBE

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — Sen. Robert F. Wagner, D., N. Y. yesterday asked the Senate Foreign Relations committee to investigate the "unjust imprisonment of Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty by the communist regime in Hungary.

'He Seemed to Wait For Us to Leave'

display cases of articles made by prisoners. Most of us looked at them, just to pass time.

At first there was little conversation. A reporter broke the silence abruptly.

"You're Conn, aren't you," he said to a large heavy-set man standing in the middle of the room.

"Yes," answered the other. He was Sgt. L. D. Conn of the Van Wert police force, the officer into whose chest John C. West shot a bullet from his deadly gun. Conn answered the attack by spraying the truck with a sweep of his tommy gun—and brought death to West.

"What do you think of this ending to the Daniels case," asked another newsman.

"It's a good ending. It's some thing he asked for himself," replied the sergeant.

Most of the death watchers turned to listen, adding questions of their own until Conn had retold the entire story of the death of West and the capture of Daniels.

At 7:40 the guard opened the doorway leading through the bars behind which he stood. Gravely he began a roll call, and we who had been waiting walked one after another into the corridor.

Those in the group, in addition to the newspapermen, were Sergeant Conn, Sheriff George R. Steinmetz of Tiffin, sheriff of Seneca county, Detective Walter Zenna of Cleveland, Detective William Colby of Mansfield and Grover L. Leopold, deputy sheriff of Seneca county.

When the roll was completed, 17 men had entered the corridor Two remained behind, refused admittance. One was Robbert J. Streusbaugh, father-in-law of James J. Smith, one of the murder victims of Daniels and West. Another was an unidentifed resident of Tiffin who had come without credentials in the hope of being admitted.

ONE TRIP ONLY

We were led along the corridor, and through a doorway into the office of Warden R. W. Alvis Alvis, sitting at his desk, repeated the roll call and handed a signed death chamber pass to each man. Printed across the slip were the words: "Good for one trip."

In the office with the warden was Sheriff F. Roy Shaffer of Van Wert, the man who captured Daniels.

Several death watchers recognized him. I introduced myself and asked if he had also come to see the execution.

"No, I'm not going in. I'm not here as a witness," he said.

The thought struck me that perhaps Sheriff Shaffer had the right idea. Just why was I going in there, anyway? But the thought was only fleeting.

The telephone rang. A woman asked if the execution was over.

"I'm sorry, we can't give out that information," Alvis replied.

Distribution of the passes was completed.

"Now, are there any questions," asked Warden Alvis?

Immediately the newsmen began a rush of inquiries.

"Who visited Daniels today? ....Did he eat a big meal? ... What happened to his guitar? .. Were his parents here?....Has Daniels been calm?

BECOME TENSE

At 7:56 the warden arose.

"Follow me," he instructed "Officers first, so their guns can be checked."

For the first time, the feeling of tenseness was evident. We who had come to see a man die were now about to witness the grisly climax of a real-life drama. We were on the way to the death chamber.

A grilled door opened, then clanged shut behind us. A guard searched each man for weapons Another grilled door was opened, and still another.

At the last gate Alvis turned and said:

"As you enter the death chamber, turn to the left and line up along the wall. There are to be no questions there."

Slowly we filed along a concrete sidewalk deep within the prison yard.

High above, three men pressed their faces against the windows of a penitentiary workshop. Lights behind them silhouetted their heads against the glass.

"They know a man is about to die," I said. I kept the words to myself. By this time no one was talking.

Our journey — probably about 100 yards—seemed short. We entered the death chamber, following the warden's instructions.

IT SEEMS UNREAL

Hardly had the door closed behind us before a guard rapped at another door. Daniels was led into the death chamber.

I had a feeling of unreality. This couldn't be true.

For a moment—no, it could only have been a second — I didn't want to look. I glanced around the room. The faces of the witnesses were as fixed as masks. They gazed fixedly at the condemned man, almost as though they could not tear their eyes away.

Earlier Warden Alvis had declined to tell the size of the death chamber. Now, without intention, I found myself estimating it at 20 by 30 feet. On the walls were the pictures of the men who had died before Daniels.

"And fifteen more are awaiting their turn in death row," I mused.

All these thoughts raced through my mind in the brief time before I again returned my gaze to Daniels. The low ceiling of the room seemed to be pressing down upon us.

THEN IT'S OVER

The execution progressed bebefore our eyes with startling efficiency. I felt the witness at my left grow rigid as the charge of electricity surged through Daniels' body. The witness gave an involuntary shudder that I felt against my arm. Perhaps I was doing the same thing.

Then the blue light above the electric chair was on again. It was over. Daniels was dead. We had to see, and we had seen.

The doctors had not yet given their official announcement. But we knew he was dead. And yet, at 8:09, when the official announcement was made, it seemed that Daniels was just sitting there waiting for us to go.

What was the look on the face behind that leather mask? Did he die with a smile on his face? We who came as witnesses would never know. For us the show—if such an exhibition can be so called — was over. And I, for one, had no desire to know.

Trouble Hits; Sailors Get Extra Leave

CLEVELAND —(INS)— Some 29 Navy midshipmen were to arrive at their Whiting naval base in Milton, Fla., today—a day late.

The middies were held up at Cleveland airport yesterday afternoon when their chartered plane developed engine trouble.

Just before midnight, however, a plane from Indianapolis was routed to pick them up and carry them back to Florida.

Most of the flyers were nearly without funds after a 15-day holiday leave and were in no position to pay for other transportation.

Fire Losses In City Dip 300 Per Cent

Martin Steel Blaze Causes Major Damage

Estimated fire losses in Mansfield in 1948 were 300 per cent lower than the previous year, the annual statistical report of Fire Chief L. J. Steele showed today.

Last year, the total estimated loss was $83,642 as compared with $293,099 in 1947.

In 1948, property valued at $1,673,269 was threatened by fire while in the previous year only $1,195,600 in property was involved.

In 1948, as in 1947, one fire caused the bulk of the fire loss. The Martin Steel Products corporation fire last November accounted for $50,000 of the $83,000 reported loss. In 1947, the fire that destroyed the Mansfield Rapid Transit, Inc., garage upped the loss figure considerably.

Although the loss figure was down 300 per cent in 1948 as compared with 1947, the number of alarms answered by the department was up. Five hundred and 91 alarms were answered last year and 517 in 1947.

The report showed the department laid 43,675 feet of hose, raised 1,226 feet of ladder, traveled 2,165 miles, worked 638 department hours and pumped for 223 hours.

Galion To Ask Bids on School

GALION — Officers were elected by the local board of education last night and impetus was given to the construction of a $225,000 South grade school. The board appointed Harry Brumemshenkel, Mansfield architect, and authorized him to start advertising for construction bids on Jan. 12.

Bids will be opened on Feb. 2 and the following day board members will meet to consider them.

Robert M. Corry was retained as president of the board with Rolland Flowers being chosen the new vice president. Miss Isabel Monroe was re-appointed clerk. It was voted to hold the monthly board meetings on the second and not first Thursday. The board finished 1948 with a balance of $11,729. During 1947 a $5,700 deficit was reported.

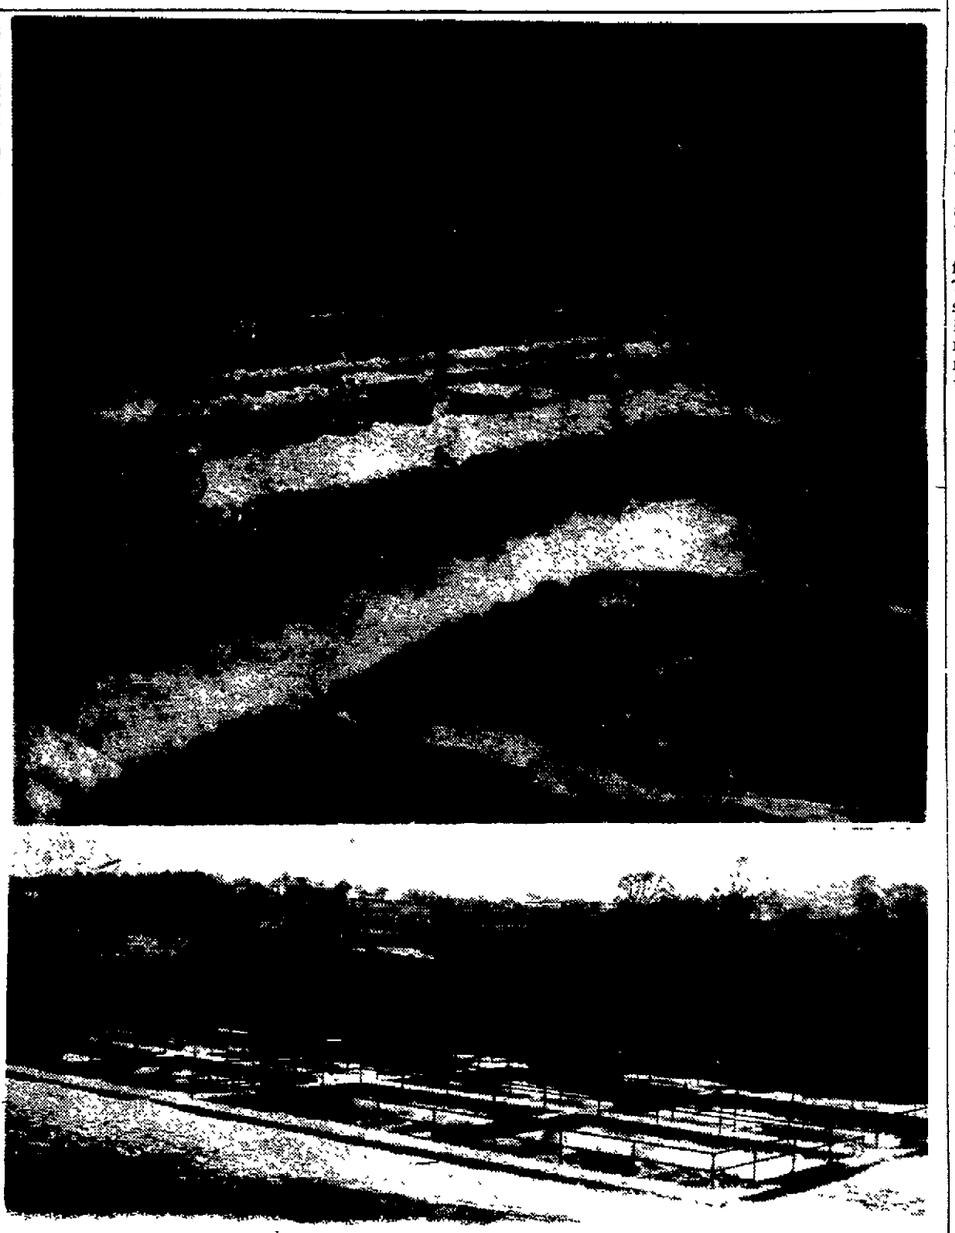
Mishap Victim Leaves Hospital

Arthur E. Collisse of Erieside, O., who figured in the accident on Lexington avenue which took the life of Corliss Crow, was improved enough to be released today from General hospital.

Mrs. Anna May Crow, wife of the accident victim, was reported in good condition at General hospital today. Officials there said, however, that Mrs. Lula Hoffman, 75, the fourth involved in the accident, was in poor condition.



SEWAGE TREATMENT—A new blower has been added to the sewage treatment plant which increases the capacity of the plant from one and three-quarter million gallons per day to two and one half million gallons. In the upper picture foam resulting from the air forced through the sewage is shown. The air blown through the sewage purifies it by killing bacteria which cannot live in air and assisting the bacteria sustained by air in killing the dangerous bacteria. Among the birds observed were three flickers, one sapsucker, five red-bellied woodpeckers, four hairy woodpeckers, 19 downy woodpeckers, 11 blue jays, nine black-capped chickadees, 11 titmice, 17 white-breasted nuthatchs, 41 starlings, approximately 100 English sparrows, 16 cardinals, three goldfinches, approximately 60 juncos, 13 song sparrows, and 200 to 250 tree sparrows.

City Office Seekers Must File By Feb. 2

Declarations of candidacy for city offices in the May 3 primary must be filed with the Richland county Board of Elections by 6:30 p. m. Feb. 2, Board Clerk Thomas R. Zeigler, announced today.

The law provides that the declarations, along with the candidate's petitions, be filed 90 days before the primary date

To be nominated by the two parties in May will be their candidates for mayor of Mansfield, a councilman from each of the six wards, three councilmen-at-large, a president of council, a city auditor, treasurer and solicitor. Their terms run for two years.

Municipal Judge H. H. Schettler's term has three years to go. He won a four-year term at the November, 1947 election.

Under the Shelby non-partisan charter form of government, a primary will be held only in the event that more than two persons file for any one office.

Shelby city voters will vote on a mayor, director of law, director of finance, a councilman from each of the four wards and a councilman-at-large.

Inasmuch as candidates for township, village and school district offices, run on a non-partisan ticket, nominating petitions for those offices do not have to be filed until 90 days before the general election, which falls on Nov. 8 this year.

MEETS TOMORROW

The Richland county Guernsey Breeders association will meet tomorrow at 11 a. m. at Johns park, Dr Charles G. Brown, president of the group, announced.

3 Properties Change Title

The property at 36 South Mulberry street, housing offices of Drs R. E. Frush and Robert P. Scott has been purchased from Mary A. Schettler, by Mrs Virginia Frush and Mrs. Hannah J. Scott, the doctors' wives.

The price was $29,500, according to revenue stamps on the warranty deed, on file in the recorder's office.

Other deeds show that Helen C. and John S Hattery sold a property at the southeast corner of Austin and Woodhill roads to Clara H and Thomas A. Siegenthaler. Revenue stamps showed that the purchase price was $28,000.

Another transaction showed that the Siegenthalers sold the Hatterys a property on Brae Burn avenue, between Dickson and Woodville road. The purchase price, according to the stamps, was nearly $17,000.

City Departments Ask $1,867,448 For 1949

By SHELDON BINN

The largest requested appropriation bill in Mansfield's history will go before the finance committee of city council on either Jan. 6 or 10, Councilman Fred Miller said today.

The total of all requests for 1949 is $1,867,448, which is approximately 42 per cent above the original 1948 appropriation ordinance and 15 per cent above the total of the original appropriation ordinance plus additions made during 1948.

In terms of dollars and cents, the requests for 1949 are $553,145 above the original 1949 appropriation bill and $245,730 above the total of the original appropriation plus additions made during the year.

A total of $755,727 is requested for the general fund and $1,111,761 for the garbage, sanitary sewer, water, parking meter, public recreation and street department (the portion which draws revenue from gas tax and registration fees) funds.

The finance committee will go over the requests item by item, paring the bill to meet expected receipts for 1949.

The total of expected tax receipts and the unencumbered balance brought over from 1948 for the general fund totals approximately $679,655. The committee must therefore pare the requested $755,000 down to that figure.

It probably will be pared even more than that to provide a source of funds in case of an emergency.

Major changes proposed in general fund appropriations follow:

1. The police department request is set at $132,585, as compared with $101,635 last year. The change is the result of the new pay scale approved by the voters on Nov. 2.

This figure does not include nine patrolmen and the traffic commissioner, who tentatively will be paid from parking meter revenue.

2. The fire department's request is down from $233,576 to $190,891. This change is explained by the fact that the more than $100,000 appropriated last year for the No. 4 and 5 fire stations is not on this year's request.

The salary costs are up from $110,630 to $178,491 as a result of the new pay scale now in effect, plus the addition of two captains and three firemen to the force, plus a proposed addition of two platoon chiefs.

3. The storm sewer request is up from $69,522 to $110,900. According to the requests, $100,000 of the total would be used for the construction of new sewers.

4. The park department has asked for $76,600, approximately $16,000 more than last year. The bulk of the proposed increase is marked for improvement of the South Boulevards community house and for the acquisition of additional land for parks.

Actually no purchase of land is proposed for the immediate future, but the park board would like to build up a reserve.

5. The city building fund is down from $40,621 to a requested $20,050. The difference is accounted for by the fact that $20,000 was spent last year for constructing the new courtroom, painting and rewiring the building.

6. The health department has asked for $6,200 for the sanitary department, as compared with $3,592 last year. The department wants to add a food and market inspector to the staff.

ASKS MORE MEN

In other departments drawing their money from other sources than the general fund, the following changes are proposed:

Garbage department — An additional $15,000 is asked, raising the total to $106,950. The money is needed for the addition of three men to the department.

Water department— This department has asked the largest increase, from $395,944 to $502,539. A substantial portion of the increase is accounted for by additional interest and bond maturity requirements as a result of the $1,200,000 bond issue floated early in 1948.

Street department — That portion of the street department drawing funds from gas tax and registration fee receipts has asked for $252,550, as compared with $182,650 last year.

The increased items include money for a new wing on the garage and additional personnel for the department.

The parking meter, sanitary sewer, public recreation and police and firemen's pension funds remain nearly the same as last year.

Water Line Bids Sought

Council to Get Measure Tonight

A measure authorizing the service-safety director to advertise for bids for construction of the raw water pipe line for the Clear Fork waterworks project is the leading item on the agenda of tonight's city council meeting.

The bill provides for the appropriation of $100,000 to cover the cost of the first item of "phase three" of the Clear Fork project.

The raw water pipe line will run from the dam to the site of the filtration plant and high-lift pumping station at the end of Cook road. It will be about one mile in length.

Other items on the calender include bills creating two new sewer districts, appropriation of $10,000 for incidental engineering expenses for the Clear Fork project, and a bill granting the Pennsylvania railroad permission to construct safety gates at their East Fourth, Fifth, and Orange street crossings.

Distl Back In Lineup For Tonight

By CHARLEY STINE

Madison high basketball Coach Blaine Dowler said this morning that Center Joe Distl would be back in the starting lineup when the Rams invade Willard for their first 1949 game tonight.

Distl, regular pivot man, missed the last game with a back sprain and it was feared that he would be out for a long period of time. However, Dowler reported that Joe had been pronounced fit by a physician and would see at least limited service.

RIBLET READY

If Distl is unable to go the full route his place will be taken by Gene Riblet who has been filling in very capably at all positions as the "No. 6" man. Riblet can play forward, guard, or center.

Rounding out the lineup, the Ram coach will stick to his regular quintet of Ed Chelski and Larry Secrist at guards and Ray "Dutch" Bader and Jim Brightbill at the forwards.

Willard broke even in foul games it has played.

Other games in the area tonight include one Richland county league tilt and a number of non-loop games. Butler will be at Plymouth in the county league while the best game of the night will likely be at Perrysville.

Perrysville's Admirals—winners of nine of ten starts will be after revenge on the only team to mar its victory record. Lakeville, which won a 41-40 decision in the season opener at Lakeville, will invade Perrysville for a return match tonight. Johnsville will travel to Edison and Shelby to Galion in other games.

Ashland Tickets Moving Slowly

Tickets for the Senior high-Ashland basketball game moved slowly as the sale opened at Senior high school yesterday, Ticket Manager George Sherman reported this morning.

Some 400 student and 200 adult tickets are still available for the contest, which has heretofore been an annual sell-out. The tickets will be on sale at the school the rest of the week.

Plymouth and Butler will open the 1949 version of the Richland county basketball league tonight when they meet on the Plymouth high school floor.

The game was originally scheduled for Dec. 23 but was postponed because of the holidays.

Butler is still looking for its first victory while Plymouth is attempting to get back up to the .500 mark. The Pilgrims have won two games and lost three.

Another game postponed from the holidays will be played tomorrow night to bring the schedule up to date. Lexington will be host to Shiloh in that engagement.

Iowa Whips Reserve Five; Ashland Wins Over Albion

(By Associated Press)

Western Reserve fell 61-54 before Iowa last night, despite a last minute rally that for a time threatened the Hawkeye lead.

The Iowa City game was the only one in which an Ohio college played out of state. It was the Hawks' final non-conference contest before opening their Big Nine basketball campaign against Purdue Saturday.

In two other college games last night, Ashland College trimmed Albion of Michigan 69-59 and the Goodyear Wingfoots routed the Wooster College Scots 66-36.

EAGLES SPLURGE

Ashland led 35-31 at the half. Albion regained the lead until a last minute Ashland scoring streak put the home team ahead. Guard Dick Cooper paced Ashland with 16 points, while Center Dick Allen of Albion racked up 15.

The Wingfoots' victory ended a five-game losing streak to college teams. Scoreless for the first six minutes, Wooster managed to make nine straight points for a 10-10 tie, but dropped behind 34-21 at half-time.

Three Church Games Listed

The other six teams in the Senior church league will take up the pursuit of league-leading First Methodist in the three basketball games set for tonight on the YMCA court.

Park Avenue Baptist will meet First Christian at 7 p. m. while St. Matthews takes on United Brethren at 8 and Ontario Community goes against Lucas Lutheran at 9.

St. Matthew's and Park Avenue are tied for second place in the loop with three victories and one defeat. First Methodist has four straight triumphs.

Duquesne Cagers Absorb First Loss

NEW YORK —(AP)— Two of college basketball's few remaining, unbeaten teams saw action last night. One of them stubbed a toe. The other kept going.

Duquesne, which had won six straight without a reversal, bowed to Yale at New Haven, Conn., 71-56, leaving only 11 major teams with perfect records.

Frisch Sweeps Trio From Urschel Five

Eighth-place Frisch Grocery of the Commercial C league rates the 21-gun salute today for its giant killing efforts. The Grocers rose to the heights last night to sweep three games from Urschel Insurance which heretofore had been making a runaway of the league race.

Taking full advantage of Urschel's slip was the Local No. 17 team which swept three from Independent Towel to move to within one game of the top.

Individual honors went to Charles Bauer—one of three men in the six leagues to make the mythical honor roll. Bauer fired a 223-209-176—608 for Mansfield Tire which won three in a row over Long Bar. The Orphans also swept three from Montgomery Ward.

John Waldman of Frisch Grocery was runnerup for single game honors with a 222 but his 554 series was farther to the rear. Jim McPhern, Tire, had the second best series, 592, followed by Elmer Myers, Pioneer Printing, 582, and Emmet McIntire, Urschel 567. Jake Schmidt, Tire, posted 560 and Lester Zavelson, Independent Towel, 557.

Outstanding bowler of the night was Hal LeMunyon who splintered the pins for a 235-204-191—630 score while rolling with McCarrick's Gulf in the Richland A league. Another Richland bowler, Orlie Grable, was not far behind as he turned in 222-167-234—623 with the Richland "A" team.

W. Huck of Ohio Sport Center was in third place with a 222 single game and 573 series. R. Kinton of the Frank Williams quintet posted 561 while Gene Rudolph and Winnie Cleckner had a pair of 560's. M. Cramer had 556 and Dale Cleckner, 526.

Oak Park Tavern swept three games to increase its lead to three games over Miller's Hi Life which took two out of three.

C. Penrose led Gorman-Rupp bowlers with a 247 single game and 592 series. His nearest competitor, Earl Turner, was far behind with a 508. D. Bachman had 493 and Dick Noblet, 476.

★

George Garrison of the Schoolmasters was the Club league's "600" representative as he too tacked a 608 on the board. Garrison's score was compiled on games of 188, 232, and another 188.

"Pete Linster of American Legion was runnerup with a 229 single game and 589 series. Ed Miller of Page Dairy pounded out 585 while R. Risser of the University club had 578 and Bart Haley of the same team, 564.

Most "inconsistent" bowler of the night was Fritz Schnittke who put a fine 233 game between scores of 153 and 133.

University club moved to within two games of the league lead by sweeping three games while first place Schoolmasters were taking two of three.

National Cash Register bounced back into first place in the Women's Variety league with a three-game sway over A. & P. Mitsch's Corner Store, which took over first place last week, fell back to second with a two of three loss to Stone's Grill.

Evelyn Marshman, Larimore Realty, was the top individual in the loop with 153-161-148—462. Hazel Hilborn, South Boulevards, had 458 and Dot McDevitt, Farmer's Market, 452. Other scores included Bonnie Sherman's Penn Auto, 440, and K. Shaffer's Shumaker's Drugs, 439.

Two Boxing Jousts Are Set at F-H

Boxing moved into the local sports spotlight today with the announcement of plans for two amateur shows by Friendly House Athletic Director Mike Wentz.

Wentz said that a nine-bout card will be staged at the Friendly House Jan. 17, and that the annual tournament will be held the nights of Jan. 31 and Feb. 1.

No pairings have been made for the Jan. 17 card but complete plans were revealed for the tournament.

TWO DIVISIONS

Champions of both novice and open classes will be crowned in all weight divisions. "Novice" was defined as a person having less than three previous fights. Last year's tourney in which 37 boys were entered, had only one class.

Entries will be limited to ages 16-25 and golden gloves will be awarded to winners in all divisions. A trophy will be given by the Friendly House to the outstanding fighter in the tournament while the Daley-Miller trophy will be awarded for the quickest knockout.

Boxers from Marion, Galion, and Mt. Vernon are expected to compete both in the Jan. 17 card and in the tournament.

Illinois Puts On Power To KO Badgers, 62-50

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. —(INS)— The University of Illinois basketball team lived up to advance notice ravings today after defeating Wisconsin, 62 to 50, in the opening game of the Western conference in Champaign.

Teams Get Bowl Melon Slices

NEW YORK —(AP)— The Rose Bowl carved up the largest financial melon of the some $2,500,000 that poured in from the New Year's day football game but two of the fattest individual slices went to the teams in the Sugar Bowl.

North Carolina and Oklahoma received fat purses at New Orleans—better than $102,000 each—without any commitments to share it.

Principals in the Rose and Cotton Bowls were paid off handsomely but had to scatter some of their wealth among their conference brothers.

Even so, it looked as if California and Oregon, the coast co-champions, both would wind up a bit more than $100,000.

Oregon not only receives its share of the Cotton Bowl profits but, as a Pacific coast member, gets a bit of the money taken in by the Rose Bowl.

While the Pasadena sponsors haven't completed their audit, the best estimate is that their game grossed $533,000, after taxes.

This includes receipts from approximately 89,270 ticket sales and $100,000 for radio and television rights.

Of th total, the Tournament of Roses association gets about $129,000, leaving approximately $404,000 to be split between the Pacific coast and Western conferences.

The Cotton Bowl at Dallas grossed $309,525.60. Uncle Sam snatched $50,400 of this for taxes and the State Fair of Texas took 15 per cent of the remainder for stadium rental.

The competing teams, Southern Methodist and Oregon, were left with a paltry $108,912.47 each. S. M. U. had to pay 25 per cent of its share—$27,478.11—to the conference. Oregon voluntarily voted to kick in a hunk of its take to the PCC.

At Miami, the Orange Bowl's 60,523 patrons paid $323,400. About $41,000 was turned over to the city for stadium rental. Texas and Georgia, which furnished the entertainment, received $75,000 each.

The smaller Bowls haven't finished all their figuring but several already have seen enough to recognize red ink.

The new Prairie View Bowl at Houston took in only $15,119 altogether and had to pay Wilberforce (Ohio) and Prairie View after expenses were lopped off the top.

GALION — Clarence Case, 53, was stricken with a heart attack yesterday shortly before 11 a. m. after ascending a flight of stairs in the Eagles lodge here. A resident of 320 South street, Mr. Case had been employed as a machinist at the Central Ohio Steel Products company until ill health forced his retirement on Dec. 15.

Born in Morrow county on Sept. 23, 1895, he was the son of George A. and Sarah (Windbigler) Case. Surviving are five children, Dorcas, Lawrence, George, Thomas aand Jacob, all of Galion; two brothers, Lawrence, of Galion, and Jack, of near Lexington, and a sister, Mrs. Wilda Miller, of Galion.

Rites will be at 2 p. m. Thursday in the Snyder funeral home, with Rev. Arva Taylor, Market Street Methodist church pastor, officiating. Burial will be in Mansfield Memorial cemetery.

Fatal Plane Crash Leads To Dispute

SEATTLE — (INS) — A dispute developed today over whether the chartered airplane which carried 11 Yale university students and three crew members to their death at Seattle was cleared for takeoff.

Attorneys for the Leland Carter company, operators of the ill-fated DC-3, claimed that CAA records show the pilot was cleared after waiting a half hour. It was the first major air disaster of the new year.

Luke Sewell Inks Contract As Red Coach

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Luke Sewell, the only man ever to lead the St. Louis Browns to an American league pennant, was signed today to coach the Cincinnati Reds, thereby swelling the ranks of former big league managers who now are turning to coaching jobs.

The 48-year-old Sewell, who won the pennant with the Browns in 1944, returns to baseball after a two-year absence. According to Cincinnati officials, he will be one of the highest paid coaches in the majors.

BOSS TO COACH

By signing with the Reds, Sewell becomes the 11th ex-big league pilot who will serve as coach in the majors during 1949. All but four of the 11 were signed as coaches since the conclusion of the 1948 season.

Apart from Sewell, other former managers who will serve as coaches in the National league are Frankie Frisch, Freddie Fitzsimmons, Allen (Dusty) Cooke, Honus (Hans) Wagner and Clyde Sukeforth.

The five American league coaches who once managed in the majors are Steve O'Neill and Bill McKechnie of Cleveland, Ted Lyons of Detroit; Bill Dickey of the New York Yankees and Jimmy Dykes of Philadelphia. All but McKechnie signed up for their new jobs within the past 90 days.

Daniels Prays In Death Chair

proached the slight form in the large chiar. Slowly and methodically he pulled the white shirt open to bare the chest and what appeared to be a small metal tag tied around Daniels' neck. Minutes passed and not a sound could be heard.

The probing stethoscope moved about the discolored chest, seeking some sign of life. At long last Dr. Eckstrom turned from what was in all probability his last official act for the state of Ohio, and motioned to Dr. E. Stanley Anderson, prison psychologist. He stepped aside as Dr. Anderson moved up onto the little platform to make his examination.

It was brief. In a few seconds Dr. Anderson turned and spoke, slowly and distinctly:

"Sufficient electricity has passed through the body of inmate Robert Murl Daniels, No. 87057, to have caused death at 8:09 p. m."

Slowly the witnesses filed from the death chamber. Behind them the guards prepared to remove the remains of No. 87057 from the electric chair.

There was none of the stench and odor of burning flesh supposedly a gruesome part of such an execution. There was absolutely nothing. Nothing but a parade of men, each knowing his job so well that less than nine minutes had passed before a living man was a piece of burned and discolored flesh in penalty for three slayings he had once boasted of.

Somewhere outside the tiny brick death chamber a hearse waited to carry the remains of Robert Murl Daniels to a funeral parlor. His parents had asked that the exact mortuary be kept a secret, along with funeral arrangements, although it was known that the family had claimed the body.

DEATH — 8:09

With the electrocution finished, the witnesses and the warden filed back along the sidewalk to the main prison building. Here the first act on the part of Warden Alvis was to inform Governor Herbert's office that Daniels had been executed. He dialed a number, then spoke just five words.

"Bob? Warden. Death—8:09. Goodnight."

The reporters, and law officials who witnessed the death of Robert Daniels left the office and the prison. The bloodiest crime trial in the history of Ohio had, officially ended. For the wives, children, and other relatives of the six persons killed it will never end.

Among the witnesses, a particularly grim look on his face, was Sgt. Leonard Conn of the Van Wert police department. Sgt. Conn, still carries the scar made by a bullet fired by Daniels' companion, James Coulter West, 22, when the two kill-hungry youths were trapped at a road blockade near Van Wert.

Sgt. Conn, when asked how he felt about the execution and the bloody trail of six murders, said: "I'll be glad to see the end of it."

And he did.

During the afternoon Daniels' two sisters, Mrs. Lillian Sims and Mrs. Esther Flack, and his brother, Clarence Daniels were the condemned man's only family visitors. His parents did not visit him.

Daniels ate his last meal at 4 p. m., and true to his word ate 'good' according to prison officials. His choice was fried oysters, fried chicken, chili con carne, potatoes, limburger cheese spread, bread, butter, coffee, grape juice, orange juice, vanilla ice cream, with chocolate syrup, and chocolate cake.

He originally extended an invitation to reporters to come and watch him eat his last meal, but declined to see newsmen during his final day of life. Even during his entrance into the death chamber and while the straps were being fastened about him, the once bragging killer kept his eyes closed and head down. It is doubtful that he even knew anyone was in the chamber besides the guards and the priest. He seemed in a daze.

However his last meal was not a solitary affair. A prison inmate, one Daniels met at the Richland county jail shared the dinner with him. Officials declined to name this man.

Daniels spent approximately 30 minutes with the priest early yesterday morning, and received the final rites of the Catholic church. He had embraced this faith about three weeks ago. Since that time he had done little other than to read religious books sent him from the outside.

Daniels, one of 16 inmates of 'Death Row', was removed from there and taken to the death cell at 5:15 p. m. The priest remained with him and aided him into the death chamber and to the electric chair.

BLOODY TRAIL BEGINS

The bloody trail of Daniels and West began July 9, 1948 when they killed Earl C. Ambrose, Columbus night club owner, during the course of an $800 robbery. After his capture Daniels blamed West for this killing.

On the afternoon of July 21, 1948, the nude bodies of John E. Niebel, his wife, Nolana, and their daughter, Phyllis, 21, were discovered in a cornfield on the R. B. Gardner farm east of Mansfield. According to Daniels and evidence introduced at his trial, the killings which shocked Mansfield took place at approximately 1:30 a. m. that day.

Daniels later asserted he had originally planned to "beat the hell out of them" but changed his mind on the spur of the moment and shot all three of them.

"Give me credit for the Niebels," he boasted.

Similarity between the car seen near the Niebel house shortly before the killings took place and the car used in the Ambrose killing at Columbus launched the greatest manhunt in Ohio history.

Shortly after 11 p. m. the next day, (July 22, 1948,) a car containing two men forced another to the side of the road near Tiffin. In the latter car were Mr. and Mrs. James J. Smith. The two men, Daniels and West, passed themselves off as police officers, trying to get Smith's driver's license. When the ruse failed, one of the men (Daniels claimed it was West) shot and killed Smith as he sat in the car.

Following this slaying, Mrs. Smith leaped from the car and sped towards a house a short distance away. West and Daniels shouted at her, telling her to stop or they'd kill, her but Mrs. Smith kept running.

MRS. SMITH PRAISED

(Just prior to the execution last night police officers who were discussing the Smith slaying praised the young woman for her cool actions and presence of mind. Several of them claimed that her accurate information was the big break which enabled them to kill West and capture Daniels the next day.)

A posse rushed to the scene of the latest murder, then launched an extensive search. They found the car in which the killers had fled after the Smith killing, then discovered another body in the roadside park where the grey car had been abandoned. The body, although stripped of identification, was later found to be that of Orville Taylor, Niles, Mich., truckdriver.

THE CAPTURE

On the morning of July 23, 1948, officers at a road block near Van Wert halted a drive-away truck for a routine inspection. Sgt. Conn fatally wounded West in a gun duel in which Conn himself was wounded. Sheriff Shaffer captured Daniels in one of the autos on the truck. Daniels pleaded with Shaffer not to shoot him.

Daniels was taken to Celina for safe-keeping and a week later was returned to Mansfield and held under 24-hour guard in the county jail. The grand jury, called into special session, returned first-degree murder indictments against Daniels for the Niebel murders.

Common Pleas Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch appointed Attorney Lydon H. Beam to defend Daniels, who entered a plea of not guilty by reason of insanity. Daniels also waived trial by jury and the case opened on Sept. 13 before a three-judge court composed of Judge Kalbfleisch, Judge Chester Pendleton of Hancock county and H. E. Culbertson of Ashland county.

The trial lasted five days during which the courtroom was packed daily, many persons having been refused admission.

Testimony by members of Daniels' family purported to show that Daniel's was involved in vehicle accidents, resulting in head injuries which accounted for his behavior.

This testimony was more than counterbalanced by the testimony of two court-appointed psychiatrists, Drs. R. E. Bishong, superintendent of the Lima State hospital, and J. F. Bateman, superintendent of the Columbus state hospital, who told the court their examinations of Daniels proved he was sane then and at the time of the crime.

Daniels was found guilty by the three-judge court on Friday, Sept. 17, and sentenced to the chair. He was taken to Columbus, to the death row of the Ohio Penitentiary the next day.

A motion for a new trial was filed, but it was overruled by the court. No appeal was ever filed.

A routine clemency hearing was held by the state Pardon and Parole commission on Dec. 21, 1948, but the final plea by his parents and sister failed to sway the board. Governor Herbert followed their recommendations and refused to grant clemency to the youthful killer.

Last night the state of Ohio exacted final retribution from Daniels for his part in the 14-day bloody reign of terror.

City Forgets New Rates

Mansfielders are forgetting the new mail rate increases and running into mail delays because of it, Acting Postmaster Curtis L. Ford said today.

Parcel post and other heavy mail items are being held up for postage because the mailers are failing to include sufficient postage, he said.

Ford urged Mansfielders, especially business and industrial firms, to contact the post office if there is any doubt in their minds as to the amount of postage required under the new schedule.

He said the post office is preparing rate sheets for big mailers which will be available at the post office this afternoon.

Board to Seek County Funds for Repairs to Fairground

Committee Named To Make Survey

Group Retains Rinehart as Head

The Richland County Fair Board last night instructed a committee of three to seek a meeting with the county commissioners to ask for funds to finance needed repairs at the Fairground.

A committee, headed by Clarence Tugend, is to report to the fair board committee on needed repairs and the probable cost, before a meeting with the commissioners is sought.

The commissioners provide $2,405 which is state money and which is mandatory under law, but more money than that is required, members said.

Another committee, made up of Arthur Mellick, Charles Oberlin and Dwight W. McCollough, was appointed and instructed by Board Chairman Lewis L. Rinehart to explore the possibilities of the creation of a new Fairground. Rinehart suggested that the group look into the idea of the building of a grandstand, recreation facilities and possible building of a coliseum for city-county use.

Complete rebuilding of the Fairground would require a bond issue, members agreed.

The board last night re-elected Rinehart of Sandusky township, to his third one-year term as president. He defeated Earl Huston of Shiloh, in the balloting for the position.

Elected without opposition was Herman Matthes of Springfield township, as vice-president. Matthes joined the board as a director last night, replacing Floyd Tomlinson, resigned. Former vice-president was Herman Wolf.

KIBLER RE-ELECTED

Re-elected to his fifth term as secretary was Orville Kibler while Clarence Tugend won re-election to the post of treasurer.

Members agreed unanimously to give a party for the 4-H club advisers and vocational agricultural teachers because of their generous giving of their time for that work.

Named to a committee to make peparations were County Agent C. N. McGrew, Glenn Guthrie and Rev. Paul Beighley of Lexington. They will report back to the next meeting of the Fair board Feb. 14.

Rehired as caretaker of the Fairground was C. S. Henry, at a salary of $300 per year.

Tickets were distributed to 20 members to attend as delegates the tnnual Ohio Fair Managers association meeting in Columbus Jan. 12 and 13.

The annual financial report, presented by Kibler, showed that receipts for the past year totaled $6,012 while disbursements added up to $8,148.

Receipts included $3,005 for stall and pen rent, $2,405 from the county tax levy, $367 interest from $14,000 in bonds, $82 in membership fees, and $153 received in the sale of a small building.

Disbursements included salaries of $300 for the secretary, $50 for the treasurer and $210 for the caretaker, expenses of $415 for members, $33 for advertising, $371 for printing and stationery, $12 for postage, $965 for Grange and school premiums, $1,540 for other Junior Fair premiums, $35 for judges, $16 for police, $281 for special attractions, $441 for labor, $3,362 for repairs and replacements at the Fairgrounds, $38 for utilities and $77 in miscellaneous expenses.

UE Leaders To Talk Here

The United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America, CIO has announced a series of ten Open-Forum meetings for the Mansfield membership to be held twice a month, beginning Wednesday according to Richard Niebur, local representative of the U. E.

The first meeting will be held at the YMCA at 8 p. m.

David Scribner, general counsel of the UE, will open the series of forums. His topic will be the "Evansville Formula". Scribner appeared in behalf of the UE members in Evansville, Ind., recently when they were being compelled to sign affidavits stating their political and religious beliefs in order to keep their job, according to Niebur.

The forums will bring to Mansfield a number of the top leaders of the UE, including the three general officers, Albert J. Fitzgerald, president; Julius Emspak, secretary-treasurer and James J. Matles, director of organization of the union.

The purpose of these forums, according to Niebur, is to permit the Mansfield UE members to better acquaint themselves with the top officers and leadership of their union, and the union's policies and program.

Ask Opinion On Reward

Now that the Robert Murl Daniels case apparently is closed, Richland county commissioners said today they will seek another legal opinion on payment of the $5,000 reward offered last summer for his capture.

Chairman Guy F. Stewart said today the board would not go into the matter of the reward at the next regular meeting tomorrow because of reorganization problems.

The day after the Niebel murders, county commissioners offered the reward for the capture and conviction of the slayer. Following Daniels' conviction, commissioners asked and received an opinion from the last prosecutor, Theodore Lutz, that the reward payment should be held up until after the penalty of the court was carried out.

Two members of the present board, Stewart and C. L. Shoup, voted for the resolution, which set up the reward. Another member, Fred W. Dill, a Democrat, has been added since the reward was offered.

Thomas' Trial Date Delayed

WASHINGTON — (UP) — Physicians at Walter Reed hospital were examining Rep. J. Parnell Thomas, R., N. J., today to determine whether he is too sick to stand trial for alleged payroll-padding.

They will report on his condition to Federal Judge Henry A. Schweinhaut probably by Friday. The judge yesterday postponed Thomas' trial one week to Jan. 17 to allow time for a thorough physical checkup.

The former chairman of the House un-American Activities committee is suffering from a stomach ailment. His attorney presented an affidavit yesterday from Thomas' personal physician, who said excessive strain at this time might bring on another attack of internal bleeding.

This Is Getting To Be a Habit

OCEAN PARK, Calif. —(AP)—A year ago, on New Year's Eve, Andrew G. Olquin was walking home from a party when he was hit by a car. His right leg was bruised and he had a slight brain concussion.

This New Year's Eve, after another celebration with the same friends, he was hit by another car —just two blocks from last year's accident.

It is sensible to secure complete information before deciding funeral matters.

City Building Construction Shows Million-Dollar Gain

Five hundred and four building permits for new constructions and alterations with a total value of $3,457,236 were issued in Mansfield in 1948, a report issued by Mrs. Mary Diebler, permit clerk, showed today.

The 1948 total number of permits was 28 above the 1947 total, and value involved was up approximately $1,000,000.

The majority of the permits, 328, were for new buildings, while 176 were for alterations. The value of new construction totaled $3,215,425, nearly $1,200,000 more than in 1947.

A monthly breakdown of the reported construction showed that more permits were issued in July than any other month. In that month, 73 were issued, followed by June, with 72. There were 67 in April, 48 in May. Other permits were: August, 47; September, 44; March, 43; October, 41; November, 35; January and February, 13 each, and December, eight.

Police Seek 2 Gunmen

CINCINNATI —(AP)—Two gunmen were the object of a wide police search today after they reportedly kidnaped four women, in nearby Norwood last night, took them on a wild ride and then shot a Norwood businessman in the back.

Norwood Police Chief Charles Fritz said he had requested police in neighboring cities to join the search for the gunmen.

The four kidnaped women were: Mrs. Margaret Wilson, 42, operator of a Norwood restaurant; Miss Doris Stamper, 44; Miss Ethel Wells, 27, and Miss Brooki Owens, 28.

PAGE FOUR — MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, JANUARY 4, 1949

Pause, hesitate, reflect—make sure it's a "9" instead of an "8."

Such a relief to have all of last year's bills paid this early in the new year—wouldn't it be?

One suggested resolution for Americans that deserves being passed around is: "Let us resolve that we will take a good, long look at our own faults before we begin to criticize the other fellow's."

Congress Gives Hint of Intentions

AS THE 81ST CONGRESS went into action yesterday, under Democratic control, no time was lost in taking preliminary steps toward removing power from the House rules committee to bottle up legislation opposed by a majority of its members.

If the administration-approved proposal prevails, a bill being held up by the rules committee for more than 21 days can be called up for action by the House without requirement for a petition signed by a majority of members, as has been the case heretofore.

One of the strong campaign claims against the Republican-dominated 80th Congress had to do with the arbitrary attitude of the powerful rules committee in blocking House action on some of the measures approved by the administration, and yesterday's action may be regarded as a first move toward clearing the decks for legislative action that accords with the views of President Truman and his supporters in House and Senate.

Quick introduction of a bill to repeal the federal taxes on oleomargarine also appears as indication of determination to carry through a bit of work that was nicely started last year but which was sidetracked—under lobby pressure—before final enactment.

Awaited with interest is President Truman's State of the Union message, scheduled for delivery tomorrow, which is expected to chart the course of Congress along lines which will reflect administration policies as presented in the Democratic platform and by party spokesmen during progress of the campaign.

Whatever may finally develop into legislative action on some of the controversial issues with which the new Congress will be required to cope, there can be no doubt that the coming days and weeks will bring much of interest out of Washington, and day to day reading will be required in keeping tab on the public business being transacted by representatives of the American people.

Youth's Career of Crime Ended

THE TRAGIC STORY that began with the triple murder of Ohio State Reformatory Farm Superintendent John E. Niebel, his wife and daughter, last July 21, reached its final chapter last night, when Murl Daniels, 24-year-old confessed killer, was put to death in the electric chair at the Ohio penitentiary in Columbus.

John C. West, his partner in the crime spree which resulted in the murder of six persons, was killed when the fugitives were run down near Van Wert two days after their kidnap-slaying of the Niebel family, while Daniels was captured without resistance.

Except for those who oppose the death penalty under any circumstances, there has been very general recognition of justification for its application in this case, as more brutal crimes than those perpetrated by Daniels and West are unimaginable.

While it is commonly referred to as "capital punishment," real purpose of the death penalty seems more properly regarded as a means of extermination rather than punishment.

It is an unfortunate but undeniable fact, that slow advance from savagery to so-called "civilization" has resulted in human form being attained by some creatures in whom jungle instincts dominate over the essential attributes of right living—which include careful observance of the rights of others.

Whether it is through inheritance, environment, or neglect that children develop into the adult vicious criminals that some of them become, is a matter for further study, with continuance of efforts to remove causes of what, for lack of a better name, is called "juvenile delinquency."

It was by his inhuman acts that Murl Daniels forfeited the right to live. Now he is beyond doing harm to others. But the conditions that contributed this one youth to a career of crime which ended in the electric chair, will assuredly bring the same fate to others unless they are recognized and righted.

'Success Story' Told In New Book

SOME BOOKS are intended merely to provide entertainment, others are informational, others inspirational—and an occasional one provides all three of these elements. Such a recently published book is "Main Street Merchant," written by Norman Beasley and published by Whittlesey House.

"Main Street Merchant" tells the life story of J. C. Penney, and its reading combines entertainment, information and inspiration in a way that sustains interest from start to finish.

Possibly most impressive is the vivid recital of the stern training of Mr. Penney's boyhood and the difficulties of his early manhood, during which he formulated the policies which have since been pursued in operation of the Penney stores, now numbering more than 1,600 in towns and cities throughout the United States, including Mansfield. Growth from the first small store in Kemmerer, Wyo., represents an accomplishment of 16 years, and the story of how this was done makes fascinating reading.

It is especially recommended for reading by young men, as it presents a factual record of qualities that make for success—with at least an intimation of those that contribute to failure.

As Harry Wade views it: "It still takes a lot of industrial know-how just to put together a motor car capable of carrying its own weight in extras."

Labor Objectives Grow

By THOMAS L. STOKES

WASHINGTON — Labor objectives in this country are undergoing an evolution that perhaps has been too little noticed.

The change of objective stems from labor's greatly increased power, which it is using in the interest of what might be termed "partnership benefits" with both government and private industry.

Currently the emphasis is on security—job security and that broader social security that embraces other advantages. This is made clear in the most recent issue of Economic Outlook, A CIO publication, which places equal stress upon getting contracts with private employers through collective bargaining covering old age, sickness and unemployment benefits and upon enactment by Congress of a social-security program such as President Truman espouses.

It is what the publication calls "two-way drive for social security."

"By keeping up the drive on both fronts we are more apt to get action," the publication says. "Collective bargaining can obtain benefits which meet the special needs of the workers and union involved over and above the basic level enacted for everyone."

As a result of this evolution toward security, it is likely that as much, or more, emphasis will be placed on social security in forthcoming contact negotiations as on straight-out wage increases.

The change in approach of labor is best illustrated by contrast with the attitude of only a few years back. Labor was skittish about government-bestowed benefits because of fear they would weaken their own organizations.

For example, William Green, AFL president, was skeptical of the proposed wage-hour law when it was first broached a decade ago for that reason. Unions, likewise, were suspicious of beneft plans advanced by private employers because, as the CIO publication puts it, "Often such plans were intended to tie the workers to the company and keep out unions."

* * *

Attitude Has Changed.

THERE are no such fears now. There is no delicacy in their approach; but, to the contrary, boldness. Power has given labor independence and authority.

In fact, the tone of the lengthy discussion in the Economic Outlook is that of people stating rights they intended to enforce rather than that of people asking for something.

For instance, in explaining that, if wage and insurance negotiations are re-opened in the spring, the United Steelworkers intend to press anew upon the U. S. Steel Corporation the elaborate social-security plan they presented a year ago. The Economic Outlook says, pointedly and significantly:

"Since the union was bound by a no-strike agreement, the matter could not be successfully concluded at that time."

This would indicate that the union is so earnest about its social-security plan that it is ready to use the strike weapon to get it, which is, of course, what happened in the case of coal several months ago.

While the Amalgamated Clothing Workers 20 years ago obtained a plan of employer-financed benefits covering life insurance, disability and hospitalization, progress along this front was slow until John L. Lewis dramatized the whole issue again by the fight he made—and won—for a welfare program for his United Mine Workers. He became the pioneer in this revived movement which, the CIO publication shows, is again making considerable headway.

The United Automobile Workers has established a special social-security department that numbers among its successes the very generous social-security contract with Kaiser-Frazer. The Textile Workers of America has secured insurance provisions in contracts covering 75 per cent of the union's 450,000 members. And Steel is the next objective.

Washington Calling

Hoover Report Awaited

By MARQUIS CHILDS

WASHINGTON — The name of Herbert Hoover is again in the front-page headlines.

As with everything else he has done, the report of the Hoover commission on the reorganization of the government will be a work of monumental thoroughness. That, as a matter of fact, may be one of its handicaps.

The final report will be based on the studies made by the task forces assigned to analyze individual phases of Operation Washington. These studies are voluminous in scope and often sweeping in their proposed changes.

It was obvious, of course, that those who initiated the Hoover commission and pushed the authorization through Congress contemplated a change in administration in January.

Such a change, with top personnel going out and new men coming in, would have made it much easier to bring about necessary reforms.

There can be no doubt that reforms are needed in the lush and undisciplined growth of government. Waste and duplication have gone along with the greatly expanded functions of the federal machine.

But whether the essential reforms can be accomplished by drawing up a vast blueprint—all-inclusive and arbitrary—is a question. And it is just here that the personality and predictions of the chairman of the commission enter in.

Next March it will be 16 years since Herbert Hoover rode down Pennsylvania avenue, a bitterly disillusioned and unhappy man beside his successor, Franklin D. Roosevelt. While the rancor of the era has passed, thanks partly to the friendly relationship established by President Truman, Hoover is basically unchanged.

That is the opinion of certain of the able technicians who are putting the final report together. As they see him at close range, Hoover, for all his expertness in government, has limitations of temperament and outlook that may limit the usefulness of the recommendations.

* * *

Disregards Changes.

TO BEGIN with, Hoover seems to feel that government today is just the same as it was when he was President. In reality, the differences are not those merely of degree but of kind. The whole structure of social security, labor legislation and public-power development has grown up since Hoover's day.

Allied with this is the Hoover conviction that a New Dealer is a pretty nefarious kind of being. While this is a prejudice shaded by many of Hoover's generation, and others, a majority of voters have repeatedly demonstrated, as they did last Nov. 2, that they favor the New Deal.

Temperamentally it is difficult for Hoover to have his opinions overridden or modified. Through his long and distinguished career he has been accustomed to give orders and to have those orders carried out. His is the mind of an engineer, a scientist, one who deals in exact terms.

At the age of 74 Hoover has worked long and diligently with the commission that bears his name. It has been a labor of love carried out in the deep conviction that someone, and preferably someone with expert knowledge, has to right the serious wrongs of government.

Immediately after the November election it was said that President Truman would now ignore the Hoover recommendations. That was unfair to Mr. Truman who has shown a friendly interest in the work of the Hoover commission.

No blueprint, however comprehensive and vast, can transform government overnight. But important changes can come out of this effort and the country will be in Hoover's debt for them.

How Will New Congress Handle Housing?

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Suggestion to Democratic House leaders: Two of the most efficient tools of the real estate lobby in the late-lamented 80th Congress were Congressmen Charles Fletcher of San Diego (Rep.) and John Riley of Sumter, S. C. (Dem.).

Cleverly placed on the banking and currency committee by the real estate lobby, these two tipped the balance against the public housing bill—a defeat which helped contribute to Mr. Truman's re-election.

These real estate congressmen have now been defeated by two up-and-coming young Democrats who campaigned on this same issue—public housing. They are: Hugo Sims of Orangeburg, S. C., and Clinton McKinnon of San Diego.

The real estate lobby is already pulling strings to keep them off the banking and currency committee. How about showing the lobby how the 81st Congress stands by putting them on?

Atomic Radiation.

ATOMIC scientists and weather experts have teamed up to prevent another Donora smog tragedy just outside New York City. They are working on ways to protect the ten million residents of Long Island and New York City from possible exposure to deadly atomic radiation.

It's not the bomb that worries the scientists, but the deadly waste bases that will be discharged into the air beginning this spring when the world's most powerful atomic pile goes into action at Brook Haven, Long Island—only 50 miles from New York City.

The scientists have noted that under certain wind and atmospheric conditions even the lightest smoke will emerge from a chimney and settle to the ground.

If the radioactive gases from the new atomic pile were to blow down instead of up and hover close to the earth in a densely populated area, the result might be tragic.

To avoid any possible danger from this direction, Dr. Lyle Borst, noted physicist in charge of the new pile, called on the experts of the U. S. weather bureau for assistance.

Today the two groups of scientists—atomic and weather — are exploring every angle of low-level weather conditions. They feel that if they can learn enough about what makes smoke go down instead of up they'll then be able to foresee the approach of dangerous atmospheric conditions. As one scientist put it: "When we finish our research, all the smoke and fumes that leave the Brookhaven pile will go in one direction, up—and they'll keep on going up."

Note: Weathermen think that the research under way at Brookhaven may go a long way in preventing tragedies due to industrial smoke. They're thinking of Donora's recent smog victims.

Forrestal vs. Forrestal.

SENATORS who are studying defense Secretary Forrestal's demand for sweeping power over the secretaries for Air, Army and Navy can't help remembering one thing which the public may have forgot. The James Forrestal who now demands such sweeping power is the very same James Forrestal who, with his Wall Street partner, wrote the national defense setup which he now complains about.

Senators are also inclined to believe that when a man fails at a job important to the national security, he should not get a second chance to make another failure.

Actually, Forrestal is the victim of his own lobbying.

When President Truman, as a result of his senatorial work on the Truman committee, proposed unification of the Army and Navy, Forrestal, then secretary of the Navy, waged a vigorous, poorly concealed campaign against it.

Forrestal's campaign was so successful that he was finally asked what combination of the armed forces would suit him; so he brought in his old Wall Street partner, Ferdinand Eberstadt, to draft the answer. The compromise he drafted was called the "Eberstadt plan."

This loose-knit regrouping of the Army, Navy, and Air Forces was what Congress eventually bought and is in effect today. In it Forrestal and Eberstadt purposely set up the loose controls which Forrestal now complains about.

* * *

Eberstadt's Review.

LATER, Herbert Hoover, charged with the job of reorganizing the executive branch of the government, called Eberstadt back and asked him to read the committee reviewing the success of unification. There was considerable protest against this inside the Hoover commission, for it violated a well-founded American principle that a man should not sit as judge in reviewing his own decisions.

That principle was discarded, however, and Mr. Hoover decreed that Eberstadt should sit as judge to decide if his own unification plan was working. The result was as could be expected.

Eberstadt found little wrong with the Eberstadt plan.

Eberstadt and Jim Forrestal have fought many battles shoulder-to-shoulder. They were not only partners in Dillon, Read and company back in the days when their firm poured millions into Germany, but they were partners in backing the military in the struggle against civilians in the war production board.

This time, however, Forrestal quietly split with his old partner. His plea last week for far-reaching power over the secretaries for Air, Navy and Army shows the extent of the split. In making it he asked for violation of another long-standing American rule: When a man fails at a job important to the security of the nation, he does not get a chance to make another failure.

Stupendous Task Near Completion; Hoover Thrives On Hard Work

NEW YORK — Herbert Hoover is bending his back these days to the herculean task of trimming billions from the tax budget ponied up by millions of Americans.

The stupendous task of modernizing and streamlining the executive branch of the government, a job undertaken by the behest of Congress, has kept Mr. Hoover, 74, working like a Trojan the past year.

The Hoover report, part of which has already been laid on President Truman's desk and made public, will be money in the pocket for countless Americans if it is eventually adopted by Congress.

Not only will the Hoover recommendations lop billions off the budget, but it will make life easier and more tolerable for the current President and his successors through efficient reorganization of their chores.

When Mr. Hoover began digging into the executive branch as constituted today, he was literally appalled. The former President was astounded at the multiplication of agencies directly responsible to the chief executive in the 20 years since he had been in the White House.

During the Hoover term in the White House, 11 agencies reported directly to the President, in addition to the members of the cabinet. Even Mr. Hoover, a demon for work, found this a full-time job two decades ago.

Consequently, when the former President discovered that more than 130 independent agencies now come directly under the presidential eye, he decided it was high time to do something constructive to relieve the overworked man in the White House.

The Hoover report when completed will not only show the way to billions in savings through more effective management of the executive branch, but will whittle that branch down to size so it is not the man-killer it has been in recent years.

* * *

Million of Words.

SOME IDEA of the monumental task undertaken by Mr. Hoover can be glimpsed in his recent cheerful statement to his life-long friend, Hugh Gibson, former diplomat and director general of relief under Mr. Hoover in World War I.

"I have only another two million words to read," Mr. Hoover told Gibson. The latter, now a word-hardened publisher with Doubleday and company, shuddered at the mere thought of so much verbiage, much less the implication of the amounts that had gone before.

But Mr. Hoover is still a human dynamo. He is never happy unless busy, and he is never busy unless he has put in an 18-hour day. The report has kept him both busy and happy with a vengeance. For 50 years, associates have panted in his wake, trying to keep up with him. They still do.

An old friend, Edgar Rickard, a mining engineer and close associate, said the other day that "Hard work gives other men ulcers; it just invigorates Herbert Hoover."

Rickard, Gibson and other intimates have quit worrying about the tremendous public burdens the former President has been assuming with increasing frequency in recent years. He can outwork and outlast men half his years.

At the end of World War II, President Truman asked Mr. Hoover to take over a tremendous task: That of surveying the world food supply and its needs. Nothing more clearly illustrates Mr. Hoover's staying powers.

In the survey Mr. Hoover and a group of younger associates covered over 75,000 miles of the earth. First the party zig-zagged around the world.

On the final return to New York, Hugh Gibson staggered off the plane with virus pneumonia. Others crept home in various stages of collapse from complete to utter.

But the former President, the oldest man in the group, dashed back to his apartment in the Waldorf-Astoria, called up 12 old friends and asked them to one of the little dinner parties he loves to give.

Then he turned in around midnight for a few hours sleep before getting up to tackle his report to the President.

Farmer's Diary

A Walk In the Woods

By CALVIN A. BYERS

A JANUARY thaw is a common thing at this time of year. Christmas week brought several zero days, with good skating. Clear skies and light skiffs of snow made ponds and rivers available for zestful sport. Then one evening it rained — and now it looks as if a longer delay may ensue before another heavy cold wave blows down from the northwest.

Today's long rain softened the hard-frozen ground and awakened the brooks that flow out of the grassroots. Wheat and rye showed green again, buds on the white elm beside the barn appeared as large as berries. Birds enjoyed to perch near the expanding leaves. Chickadees and sparrows lit in flocks upon the new green grass, and chattered sociably.

I stood on the porch and felt the invitation to walk up into the woods. I followed the path where the boys dragged down logs day before yesterday. The brush was thoroughly broken. I sat to rest upon a newly cut white oak stump under a tangled skein of greenbrier still untouched by frost. The thrifty dark green foliage intertwined with the leaves of a shivering scrub oak, making a red and green outlay that seemed most festive.

Just how some thick leaves such as teaberry and arbutus and fern choose to carry all their hardy greenness, defying the coldest weather — while others fall and die at the first frost, is one of the unsolved mysteries of nature.

Today the woods was wet. Each advancing step was silent on the soft leafy mat. Occasional little pools stood upon a basin of closely woven leaves. I noticed one lone, shellless snail crawled upon a slimy branch, slippery with forming fungus. I pushed the depth of brown leaves away and thrust my fingers into the soft pulpy soil. It was black and woven through each chunk was a white maze of roots, the very part that fills the earth with new life and substance.

I sat upon a log with the dark, fragrant clod in my hand and remembered the poet's wonder: "What if I should see a clod walking and talking . . ."

Is it true that thinking men are derived from a whole soil? And into what is humankind evolving?

Post Office Chalks Up Record Year

Revenue Tops $601,386 In 1948

The Mansfield post office has just completed the biggest year of its history, Acting Postmaster Curtis L. Ford said today.

Postal receipts for 1948 totaled $601,386.33, an increase of $59,331.28 over the last year figure of $542,055.10. Receipts for December were $71,445.36. In December, 1947, the figure was $69,717.32 Receipts for the month represent an increase of $1,728.04.

For the quarter just ended, including the months of October, November and December, postal receipts were $177,439.84.

The postoffice broke three records in 1948, Ford said.

"It has been the biggest year in the history of the post office, the biggest quarter, and December, 1948, has been the biggest month," he stated

38TH MONTH OF GAIN

The past month was the 38th consecutive month postal receipts have shown an increase over the corresponding month for the preceding year. The bulk of the December receipts came in the first part of the month, and they leveled off toward the end, the postmaster declared.

The continued increase in the post office's business indicates that Mansfield's industries are still growing and prospering, Ford pointed out.

It also means, he added, that the post office is suffering more and more acutely from lack of space and obsolete equipment. He said the building was "bursting at the seams," now.

Incoming mail also was at a peak, especially during December. It exceeds the amount of outgoing mail, due, in part, to the flood of third-class advertising matter which came in, Ford said.

Three Perish In Flash Fire

CHICAGO—(INS)—Three children burned to death and a fourth was in serious condition yesterday when a flash fire swept a two-story frame house in Chicago.

Six other children of another family living on the second floor of the building escaped when their father awakened and hurried them from the blazing structure.

Firemen said the dead children were Joyce Nichols, 4; her sister, Sandra, 2 and her 15-month-old brother, Herbert jr.

Flames Level Large Cleveland Building

CLEVELAND —(INS)— A five-alarm blaze raged through a two-story brick building on Cleveland's east side yesterday causing an estimated $400,000 damage and endangering other nearby dwellings.

The building was described by firemen as a total loss.

LARGE BOWLS of poinsettias centered the two long tables at which twenty-eight members of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Richland County Medical society were seated for luncheon Monday at the Women's Club.

One guest, Mrs. Gladys Jones of Youngstown, who is the house guest of Dr. and Mrs. R. D. Campbell, 115 Penn avenue, also was present for the affair.

Hostesses for the January meeting were Mrs. J. Harold King and Mrs. C. K. Kuehne.

Mrs. C. R. Damron, president, conducted the business session at which a letter of appreciation from General hospital nurses was read regarding the presentation of a combination radio and record-player which the Auxiliary have purchased for the Nurses' home.

Mrs. D. A. Weir reported on progress of the Blood Donor program which the Auxiliary is promoting in co-operation with the Red Cross. The organization also is working with the Lions club in providing ceiling movies for bedfast patients, it was announced.

Mrs. Weir requested the members to bring magazines to the February meeting which will be distributed to Homes for the Aged throughout Richland county.

Plans were discussed for the state meeting of Medical Society Auxiliaries to be held in Columbus in April, and Mrs. A. H. Voegele was named alternate to the meeting, at which Mrs. F. J. Heringhaus will represent the Richland county group.

Following the business session the group played bridge at four tables with score prizes being won by Mrs. D. W. Peppard, Mrs. C. H. Bell and Mrs. Charles Brown sr.

The next meeting of the Auxiliary will be an event of Feb. 7, a one o'clock luncheon at the Women's Club, with Mrs. Russell C. Long and Mrs. Robert W. Wolford as hostesses.

INITIATION PLANNED

Mrs. John Roman, worthy matron, presided at the regular business meeting of Ruth Chapter, No. 17, Order of Eastern Star, last evening at the Masonic Temple. It was announced that there will be an initiation service on January 17 at the Masonic Temple.

SHELBY — Mrs. Ray Laser, president of the American Legion Auxiliary, stated that members of the community service group headed by Mrs. Thomas Kelser had donated 75 hours of their time from the 1st to the 18th handling the sale of Christmas Seals at the local post office. Mrs. Charles Notacker, junior activities chairman, reported that that group had sent individual gifts to each child at the Richland County Home for Children at Mansfield for the holidays.

Decision was reached last night to again sponsor a local girl for the Buckeye State to be held at Columbus. Plans were completed for the annual card party to be held Feb. 15.

College Men Give Tips On How to Act

College men have very definite ideas on how a young woman should act when she is to be his guest at a house party or prom.

A symposium of students at Yale, Princeton, Harvard, Wesleyan, University of Virginia, Dartmouth and Amherst reported in Junior Bazaar discloses what the boys like and what they don't like about girls' actions on these weekend dates.

First of all they want a prompt yes or no to their invitations, and only a major catastrophe is considered a valid excuse for a last minute cancellation.

They hope you'll get along well with the girls you'll meet but abhor the "chattering and shrieking with girls they've seen in the lab the day before." They are also dead set against the girls who make a play for their best friend.

"Often the college man turns his room over to his date for the weekend," the article states. "If he comes back to it Monday morning to find lipstick on the bureau cover, cigarette holes in the bedspread, and his favorite neckties, banner or college trophy missing (she wanted a souvenir) there will be no return engagement. Also he does not feel kindly about having to trudge to the post office with tidy parcels of forgotten scarves, mittens or hats."

A good tip for the girls is to familiarize themselves with recent sports events so they will be able to talk half way intelligently in the event they are called upon to watch a sports contest during the week end.

One of the most urgent recommendations from the men is "don't overdress, so girls will be wise to avoid too daring extremes in attire.

Another urgent plea from the prospective hosts is "get it all in one suitcase; we have to carry it you know."

"You might have a couple of reasonably good, clean jokes on tap for difficult moments," the article states. "Off-color jokes and truck-driver language do not give you an aura of sophistication. They either discomfort your host or confuse his chaste mental image of you.

"Also there undoubtedly will be one stock phrase which becomes the cloche of the weekend. If you can still laugh when it's uttered for the thousandth time, you'll have earned a reputation for a grand sense of humor."

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, January 5
By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

AN all 'round state of affairs, tricky, treacherous and intriguing, may have to be boldly and decisively attacked, for any sort of progress and peace of mind. All angles and activities seem to be wrapped in vague and subtle cloaks of duplicity and falsity, difficult to penetrate. From most unsuspected sources there may be strange actions, with sudden developments, at once disruptive and devastating. Keep alert, shun curious involvements in business, financial, social and domestic relations. Don't be fooled by soft words, or subtle glamor.

For the Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves enmeshed in a strange set of circumstances in which subtlety, intrigue, betrayal and false values may allure and plunge into uncertain and disintegrating pitfalls, this from unsuspected sources, and from business, financial and purely personal combinations. Take time out to get proper values and make no decisions, take no action until all the cards are on the table. Glamor, allure and illusion can ensnare into dangerous situations. Postpone where possible.

A child born on this day may have curious traits of character, feelings and emotions, attracting similar unsound and subtle experiences and personalities.

Spring Forecast For Hats

The spring forecast is sunny for the woman who wants to coordinate her hat with her hairdo, according to some of New York's top milliners. Expressing unqualified enthusiasm for short hair, they are planning their spring collections with the view that short cuts are here to stay.

Hats definitely look better with the short coiffures, according to Braagaard, long known for his head-fitting, highly feminine hats. Calling the pompadour "the curse of femininity," he likes bangs or some softness at the forehead and fullness at the ends of the coiffure. His spring hats, which show his usual deft handling of delicate colors, are rather shallow but hug the head securely.

Small hats and wide brims look equally well with short hair, says Emme, who includes both types in her new line. Cloches and a new interpretation of the turban silhouette in straw are among this designer's candidates for popularity. As an instance of the continuing stress on the very feminine feeling in spring fashions, Emme cites the vogue for muted colors: mauves, natural and "off" greens.

Now that short hair is penetrating the mass market, Mary Goodfellow believes high fashion may swing toward the Empire look in hair. She likes the trim effect achieved by hair off the neck in back and does some of her new hats with curved short backs to show off a chignon or cluster of curls. The long, graceful lines of the new Empire-inspired clothes require softness in hats and hairdos, says Miss Goodfellow.

The extremely side-tilted sailor which has figured in some of the advance fashion news will not be widely popular, in the opinion of Mago Hayes. Hats worn on the side of the head are continental in feeling, Miss Hayes says, while American women prefer a well-balanced — if not necessarily straight-on-the-head—look. Some of her spring hats are rolled off the left temple and swing down on the right, but the crowns are round, and head-gripping, the whole silhouette being close to the head.

Hats will emphasize the "little girl" look, says Florence Retchman, who expects the short cuts to last indefinitely. Bonnets, cloches and bretons lead her spring parade, with an effect at once smooth and demure. They fit snugly over the ears but the brims are lifted off the forehead. Since there is no height in the current hairdos, as Mrs. Reichman points out, a certain amount of it must be added by the hat.

The hairline is also exposed by the new hats of Eve Tartar, who particularly likes the look of slimmed fullness with the hair fuller around the ends, longer and softer than the first, more severe short coiffures. These encouraged hatlessness, this milliner believes, because the hair was eclipsed by the hat, like the unlamented styles of the twenties. Miss Tartar does not look for a general acceptance of the Empire hairdo, which suits only certain types and requires a good deal of care. As to the shapes of hats to come, she feels that spring's slimmer skirts call for a little more bulk in the hat than we've been seeing and is featuring brims of two and a half to three inches.

Summing up, the spring picture is an attractive one: the hats, soft in line and color coordinated with smooth youthful hairdos, and adding up to a forecast of feminine charm for spring, 1949.
